In fact many learned men use Kamina Oil to prevent their hair from coming out. They are succeeding with it, too. So are many in all stages of intellectuality. ROYAL YAKUTI.

(ANANG VILAS.)

This Yakuti or life-giving nectar has been prepared from the best, choicest and richest vegetable drugs. It has a wonderful property of increasing the nerve power and is a specific for diseases. This valuable medicine is used in large quantities among Rajas, Maharajas and many of our esteemed customers. But we have ventured to give it publication simply with a view to place it before the general public owing to the demand of several friends. It is needless to say that the most magical qualities of this our invaluable medicine

we would not like to blow the trumpet as is the fashion of the day, but suffice it to say that the use of this medicine is recommended to those who have any faith in the efficacy of Ayurvedic and Unani medicines.

We recommend it also to those persons who desire to tone up the nervous system, the strengthen the body, refresh the memory and to guard against debility. It works like a charm and the effect is lasting. It restores strength and it is enough to say that must be not that which a perfume admires, it is that which diffuses fragrance of its own accord.

HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE.

DISPUTE OVER MORTGAGE SALE OF MAHOMEDAN PROPERTY.

A MINOR'S CLAIM.

(Before Justice Kaji.)

SHAFIJI SORABI KAVARANA & OTHERS, PLAINTIFFS V. EBRAHIM KADERBHAI, DEFENDANT.

One Shaikh Kaderbhai Mulla Amji died at Bombay intestate about 20th April 1906 leaving four sons and four daughters. The left considerable property both moveable and immovable. One of the immovable properties was a house at Doctor Street, the subject matter of the present suit. Its three adult sons Ahmedally, Gulamhussein and Ebrahim obtained Letters of Administration to the estate of their father Shaikh Kaderbhai on 10th September 1908. On the 3rd February 1913 the three sons mortgaged to the plaintiffs in this suit their right, title and interest in the Doctor Street property for Rs. 30,000. On the 16th October 1915 Naimtullahi, a minor daughter of Shaikh Kaderbhai and a sister of the mortgagors, filed a suit in the High Court against the mortgagors, her brothers, as administrators of the estate of her father and others for the administration of the estate of the deceased and for a declaration that the mortgagors were void. On the 15th December 1915 on a rule taken out by Naimtullahi in this administration suit Mr. R. D. Sethna was appointed receiver of the properties belonging to Shaikh Kaderbhai's estate.

On 1st December 1915, the plaintiffs, in exercise of a power of sale contained in their mortgage, put up, upon the usual conditions of sale, the right, title and interest of the mortgagors in the property at Doctor Street for sale by public auction. The defendant Ebrahim Kaderbhai, being the highest bidder at the auction, was declared the purchaser for Rs. 30,000; and the defendant paid Rs. 3,000 by way of deposit. Thereafter correspondence ensued between the parties and the defendant declined to complete the purchase, till after the mortgage which had been challenged in the suit by Naimtullahi, had been declared valid by the Court. Thereupon the plaintiffs, acting under condition 19 of the conditions of sale, forfeited the defendant's deposit, and proceeded to another sale by public auction on 1st February 1916 when the mortgagors' right, title and interest in the property was knocked down to one Hussaini Mahomedali Gohwala for Rs. 10,000. On 24th February 1916 the plaintiffs filed the present suit to recover from the defendant the deficiency which had resulted in consequence of the resale.

THE DEFENCE.

The defence raised was that it might turn out as a consequence of the administration suit filed by Naimtullahi that the mortgagors had no interest in the property. The plaintiffs would not then be in a position to give any title to the defendant and the defendant was therefore not bound to complete the sale. It was further contended that at the date of the sale to the defendant the plaintiffs were fully aware of Naimtullahi's suit and they had deliberately kept this fact back from the defendant. The defendant further alleged that he was induced to bid at the auction in consequence of certain fraudulent misrepresentations made to him by the third plaintiff, Jammadas. The defendant also raised a point of law that a Mahomedan heir could not mortgage his right, title and interest in one out of several properties of the deceased but could only mortgage his fixed share of inheritance in the estate of the deceased.

Mr. M. R. Jardine and Mr. T. J. Strangman appeared for the plaintiffs. Mr. J. B. Kanga, Mr. B. J. Desai, and Mr. D. F. Mulla appeared for the defendant.

THE JUDGMENT.

His Lordship, after hearing evidence at considerable length, gave a written judgment in the suit. His Lordship held that a Mahomedan heir could mortgage his right, title and interest in one of the several properties left by the deceased. His Lordship further held that the plaintiffs were aware of Naimtullahi's suit at the date of the sale to the defendant. His Lordship then held that the third plaintiff had made certain representations to the defendant at the auction sale; but that these representations were not fraudulent and were not such as to entitle the purchaser to avoid his contract. It was clear, that if the allegations in Naimtullahi's suit were established and the mortgage declared void and the interest of the mortgagors impounded in making good the interest of the other beneficiaries, the plaintiffs would not get anything under the mortgage and the defendant would take nothing under his purchase. No court would have declared specific performance under the circumstances and the suit for specific performance would have been postponed pending the decision of the other suit. Then it made no difference that the present suit was not one for specific performance for the principles to be applied were the same. It was clear on the authority of Motivaloo v. Vinayak (N.E. 12 Bom. 1) that the purchaser was entitled to say that the conditions of sale implied that the vendor had some title, however bad or defective, to give, and, in the present case it could not be said with certainty that the vendors, having regard to the fact that grave allegations of waste and misadministration had been made against them, would have some title, until the administration suit was disposed of. The proposition of the defendant that the completion of the sale should stand over till after the decision of the administration suit was reasonable and proper and the plaintiffs ought not to have proceeded with the resale. His Lordship came to the conclusion that he could not dismiss the plaintiffs' suit at this stage. The passing of the final decree in the suit was ordered to stand over till Naimtullahi's suit had been disposed of. Each party was ordered to pay to the other the costs of the suit on issues on which it had failed. Solicitors for the plaintiffs: Captain & Vaidya.

Solicitors for the defendant: Mohita, Dalpatram & Lalji.

"VOTES FOR SOLDIERS."

LORD SALISBURY'S BILL AND ITS METHODS.

The methods by which the Marquis of Salisbury proposes that votes should be given to men serving at the front and on the Bill which he presented to the House of Lords in mail week. According to a memorandum accompanying it, the Bill has three objects:

1. To provide with the shortest possible delay an interim Register which, though liable to subsequent amendment, is for the time being to be valid for all purposes.

2. To secure that no man who would otherwise have become entitled to be registered shall be disabled by reason of his service with the Navy and Army or the making of munitions.

3. To furnish an opportunity to electors serving in the Navy or the Army in the event of an election of recording their votes without leaving the units to which they belong or are attached.

The first object is provided in Part I. of the Bill. Clause 1 is copied from the Government Bill, with the addition of a proviso making the officers' lists valid as a full Parliamentary Register from January 1 next as an interim arrangement until May 31, by which time any claims and objections there may be can be heard and decided, and amended lists can be substituted.

The second object is provided in Part II.—in Clause 3 as to the Navy and Army and in Clause 4 as to munitions.

The method proposed is that the commanding officers of ships and military units and the superintendents of munition works shall return to the Local Government Board statements of the names of their men over twenty-one years of age, together with their original home addresses on a certain date. These statements are then to be distributed by the Local Government Board to the several counties and boroughs, and from amongst them the registration officers are to choose and register the names of those who would be or would have become qualified for a vote had they continued from the given date to reside at the addresses named in the statement. For simplicity's sake it is necessary that this date should be uniform. As regards the Navy and the Army, in order to cover all the cases it must be fixed for the day of the outbreak of war, August 4, 1914. As regards munition workers, that is not necessary. All that is required is that it should extend back for a period of twelve months so that the basis of qualification under the existing law should not be altered. The date proposed in this case is therefore October 31, 1915.

Hospitals are included amongst the units of the Army, and patients in the hospitals, if qualified, will be registered. In the case of both the Navy and the Army, all units are included which are under the command of commissioned officers.

The third object is provided in Clauses 4 and 5:

In the case of an election, every elector serving in a unit of the Navy or the Army is to be furnished by the Returning Officer with the following information:—

1. The name of the elector.

2. The name of the unit.

3. The name of the commanding officer.

SILVER MARKET.

(REUTERS' TELEGRAMS.)
 LONDON, Sept. 15.
 Messrs. Montagu's report says:—The undertone has been good, although the course of prices has been uncertain. The activity of Indian bazaars has simmered down probably owing to the reduction of their interests. In this market, the bear position seems practically eliminated, whilst bulls have realised a portion of their profits. Meanwhile prices in India show recovery. The substantial rise in China changes suggests the probability of less pressure to sell thence. Considerable shipments of silver to China from San Francisco partly account for comparatively small American offerings. Transactions during week have not been large and buyers and sellers alike are holding back.—Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

with a ballot paper, copies of the candidates' election addresses, and an envelope in which the ballot paper, when marked, is to be returned. The Commanding Officer in each case is to appoint a day on which the sealed envelopes containing the marked ballot papers are to be delivered to him or an officer appointed by him, and are to be transmitted by him to the Local Government Board, by whom they are to be sent back to the Returning Officers. In order to comply with the exigencies of military service, the Commanding Officer may choose one of seven days in which he is to receive the sealed envelopes.

The elections are to take place for the ordinary electors at the time and under the conditions prescribed by the existing law, but there is to be an interval of a month after the usual day of the poll in order to afford time for the naval and military votes to be received. As soon as this interval has elapsed the counting is to take place, and the result of the poll declared.

KITCHENER'S FATE.

FORETOLD.

REMARKABLE PROPHECY MADE IN 1894.

The well-known Astrologist Cheiro has given a picture of Lord Kitchener's hand in the "Strand." Apparently he saw him in 1894 for a second time when Kitchener said, "Years ago I went to see you like so many hundreds of others and I can only say you were most singularly accurate in everything you told me." He was then 44 years of age, and Cheiro proceeded to explain his future: "The heavens and greatest responsibility, I told him would be undertaken in his sixty-fourth year (1914)." "Tell me what you like," he said, "as long as the end is some distance off." Cheiro pointed out that 1916 was curious and Kitchener asked if there was any indication of the kind of death it was likely to be.

"Yes," I said, "there are certain indications, but not at all, perhaps, the kind of end that one would be likely to imagine would happen to you."

I then showed him, in as few words as possible, that, being born as he was in what is called, "the Cusp of the first House of Air" in the sign of Gemini, and entering into the first House of Water, the Sign of Cancer, also House of the Moon and detriment of Saturn—taking these indications together with the cabalistic interpretation of the numbers governing his life and the position Jupiter would be towards his sixty-fifth year, that his death would be by water, but most likely caused by storm at sea, with the attendant chance of some form of capture by an enemy and exile from which he would never recover.

"Thanks," he laughed, "I prefer the first proposition."

"Yet," he added, "I must admit that what you tell me about danger at sea makes a serious impression on my mind, and I want to note down among your queer theories—but do not say anything about it unless some day you hear of my being drowned—that I made myself a good swimmer—and I believe I am a fairly good one—for so other reason but that as far back as I can remember I have always had a queer feeling that water would be my greatest danger."

"Good-bye," he said, "I won't forget; and as of course, you believe in thought-transference and that sort of thing, you know if I won't send you some sign if it should happen that water claims me at the last?"

That he did remember is I think, established by an Exchange Telegraph Company's message on June 10th, mentioning that "When Lord Kitchener came some three months ago to the British Front he met at Dunkirk Commandant de Balan-court, to whom he mentioned that a 'Jack Johnson' had dropped not far from him, that did not alarm me," said the Field-Marshal, "because I knew I shall die at sea."

Cheiro winds up thus:—Exactly at eight o'clock on Monday evening, June 5th, the hour when the disaster to the Hampshire happened, I was sitting in a large music-room in my house in the country with two friends, when during a pause in general conversation about the war we were startled by a crash of something falling in the north end of the room. THE BOMBAY CHRONICLE.

Monday, September 18, 1916.

THE WESTERN FRONT.

The latest successes on the Western Front seem to have been gained with an ease which surpasses any of the previous achievements in the big push, shove or thrust,—whatever one may like to call it,—which began on the July 1st. From Courcellette down to the outskirts of Rancourt the front of the thrust has now been brought into an even line. On the British sector the first important achievement, directly correlated to those of the end of last week, was the capture first of Guillemont and then of Guinchy. That left a sharp angle of the advance at the latter point. The latest gains have brought the line further north from Thiepval, where hitherto the least advance had been made, as far as Courcellette and from Pozieres to Martinpuich, the newly acquired territory in these regions including all the important high ground from Guinchy to the Bapaume-Pozieres Road. Simultaneously the French, following up their successes of the previous few days, have reached the front trenches of the enemy south of Rancourt and the encirclement of Comble, one of the most important strategic objectives, has begun. Guinchy on the one side and Rancourt on the other being well in advance of this strongly fortified position, which is thus threatened by the Anglo-French nippers, and is already practically isolated.

The whole position is one of such peril for the German line that one may justifiably look for a decision of a definite character to be attained ere long. That such a decision is now aimed at we have no doubt. A number of wise people, who seem to think that what appears to them the slow progress of the Anglo-French offensive during August required some explanation for the benefit of those they had led to expect a sensational collapse of the German defence all of a sudden, have been telling us that the object of the offensive is not to break or pierce the German Front. That, they say, would be to the advantage of the enemy. The object is to crumble him away by continual assaults which wear away his strength, a process which is to go on till the winter entails a cessation of more active operations, and to begin again next Spring. It is asserted by the same experts that the Allies are not yet ready for a decision of the kind we have indicated above, which it is contended would merely force the enemy to shorten his line and thus make him stronger, leaving a reduced strain on his resources. It is quite evident, however, —the events of the past week leave us in no doubt,—that what is aimed at is to force the enemy by a definite decision at the selected point to take his whole front,—if he can, without meeting with an appalling disaster,—back to a new line, where he will be quickly put again on the defensive, this time with greatly inferior chances of prolonging the resistance. The nibbling and crumbling process is a past phase. The Allies are now strong enough in resources, as has been shown, continuously to carry on the offensive in the real meaning of the word, and there can certainly be no intention, if it can be avoided, of allowing the Germans another winter in which to recuperate, re-strengthen themselves and dig themselves in on new lines. It may be that the decision will not be attained yet, in spite of all the achievements of the past two months-and-a-half, and especially of the past week. We may have to suffer disappointments. But it does not look like it. The resistance of the Germans seems to have weakened in the ratio that the resources of the Allies and the irresistible character of their onslaught has strengthened. General Hindenburg will make a sad blunder if the intention with which he is credited, of transferring a number of divisions from West to East, is really in his mind. It is obvious that every man will be wanted on the Somme Front and the sympathetic raids along the rest of the line which accompany the advances on the Somme preclude the possibility of withdrawing men from any other sector.

No less than four thousand prisoners have been captured in the two days' operations of the British, to say nothing of several heavy guns and over 50 machine guns. If we compare the results and the methods of the recent Anglo-French assaults with those of the German offensive at Verdun, as well as the respective methods of defence, we realise how immensely superior are the tactics of the Allies in every respect, as well as their resources. The French hardly lost a single armament at Verdun and a far less number of prisoners, because the German assaults were allowed to exhaust themselves on thinly held lines in advance of the main positions and the heavy armament positions were seldom if ever reached. The Allies have now wrested from the enemy the superiority in the science of modern warfare which was once theirs. At every stage some new acquisition comes into play. In the early stages of the present offensive they suffered heavy losses by machine-gun fire, which remained in being after the infantry had been driven from their positions and played havoc with the advancing troops. According to Reuter's special correspondent, a feature of the two days' battle was the new armoured cars, "veritable mobile turrets," which not only terrorised the enemy infantry but seem to have solved the problem of dealing with machine guns. The aerial arm is being used in a way that has not been seen hitherto in warfare. Not only does it serve as a guide to the artillery of the greatest value, but it is described in the paradoxical phrase of "aerial infantry," the planes keeping close to the ground and assisting the advance with machine-gun fire directed on the infantry of the opposing forces. The brain of England is at last in the British Army and is concentrated on the devising of the task of harnessing science to the churist of war. It has accomplished more in this respect in a few months than the great German war machine, with all its resources, was able to do in all the years that war in Germany was so largely the pre-occupation of science.

THE WAR AND THE APPEAL OF POETRY.

Sir Herbert Warren, President of Magdalen College, Oxford, in a luminous address given at the annual meeting of the Poetry Society, sought to determine the relation of poetry to the facts of the war. What does the war stand for, and what has poetry to do at a time when in Kipling's words:

"There is nothing left to-day
But steel and fire and stone?"

We go back to Tennyson's definition of the relation of poetry to the deeds wrought in war—

"The song that nerves a nation's heart
Is itself a deed."

The prosaically inclined might ask, what need was there to "nerve the nation's heart," and assuming there was need, where is the song that did? It must be allowed, in spite of Sir Herbert, that having regard to the psychology of the nation and the Empire, the electrifying song was scarcely needed, and that the Tyrtan singer, if one had indeed arisen, would have been asked to play his rightful part in this "democratic, multitudinous, monotonous war of slow attrition,"—in the trenches! It may be granted in limine that the output of poetry has been fairly plentiful, and that apart from energetic recruiting verses like those of Harold Begbie's, poems, true appeals of poetry,—like those of Thomas Hardy's and Rudyard Kipling's,—will be read and will inspire living and dying men as long as the English language lasts. Some of the war poems, some of them from the trenches, have irradiated the whole poetic field, with the authentic passion of true poetry. As Sir Herbert Warren truly says: "Poetry is partly passion, partly art. Passion is instantaneous and intense. Art is long and slow." Is it not the truth that the great patriotic poems think with the patriotic heroic deed achieved? Take Tennyson's "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The thrill in the soul of Tennyson did not cause the charge, but it is equally true that the poem will be the inspiration of thousands who know nothing about the Crimean War or the particular exploit of the Light Brigade.

"There's not to reason why.
There's but to do and die."

Or take Sir Francis Doyle's "The Drunken Private of the Buffs":

"Who only knew that not through him,
Should England come to shame."

The same might be said of countless other poems, which are inspired and are, in themselves, a source of inspiration. Sir Herbert Warren is right in saying: "Much of the best poetry cannot be produced at once, under the stress of the war. Rather it is only crushed or killed. When the hawk hovers over the grove, the singing birds are silent, but when the hawk is driven away they burst into more excited and sweeter song,—if they are alive. And in one sense no poetry can really be produced instantaneously." One striking example of the reality of the inspiration furnished by poetry, may be recalled. A young New Zealand sergeant, a magnificent young athlete maimed for life at Gallipoli, asked a Hospital Chaplain, "I wonder Sir, if you could help me to recover a quotation which has been running in my mind for some days. It is something about 'iron dipped in baths of tears.'" The quotation, of course, is—

"Life is not an idle lore,
But iron dug from central gloom.
And heated hot with burning fears,
And dip't in baths of hissing tears,
And battered by the shocks of doom
To shape and use."

Poetry inspires, "does help both faith and fortitude."

There is poetry which inspires faith and fortitude, in England's high mission in maintaining, even amidst burning fears and hissing tears, the hopes of civilisation,—what has been described as decisively patriotic poetry. Then there is the other variety which deals with the fact of war in one of its innumerable aspects. Take, first, the poems of the former class. What can compare with the immortal tonic of Kipling's "For All We Have and Are"?

"No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal,
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will and soul
There is but one task for all.
For each one life to give:
Who stands, if Freedom fall;
Who dies, if England live?"

Mr. Thomas Hardy's "Song of the Soldiers":

"What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away
Ere the dawn-crowns say
Night is growing gray,
To hazards whence no tears can win us:
What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away?
In our heart of hearts believing
Victory crowns the just,
And that braggarts must
Surely bite the dust.
Press we to the field uncomplaining,
In our heart of hearts believing
Victory crowns the just."

There are other poems we might quote, but space forbids. Sir Henry Newbolt's poems, like those of Maurice Hewlett's, will survive the hurly-burly of the war. Even Kipling's "For All We Have and Are" will not compare with his noble address to France in the years of peace. A contemporary war poem, by Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy, strikes the same note, in the words of a dreamer who saw certain war-gaunt shadows watch the English troops land on the welcoming fields of France.

"Saw Churchill's smile, and Wellington's
Curt nod,
Saw Harry with his Crispins, Chandos' lance,
And the Edwards on whose breasts the leopards dance:
Then heard a gust of ghostly thanks to God
That the most famous quarrel of all time
In the most famous friendship ends at last."

Mr. Lascelles Abercrombie sums up as follows: "Those who think that a great war automatically produces great poetry may be disappointed at our poetic output. But it is not a very reasonable disappointment. It is quite true that the enormous majority of our war-poems have been very bad. Why not? They served their turn, their momentary turn: they need do no more. Poetry does not come about automatically; it is the most unlikely thing in the world, that a great war should be simultaneously celebrated in great poetry. How many of the famous poems about war have been concerned with contemporary war? How many great poets have not lived through famous wars and, so far as their art was concerned, ignored them? We have, however,—to make a final selection,—verses from Mr. Gibson, Mr. Masfield, and Mr. Hardy, which are certainly immediate poetic commentary on the war as good as we could reasonably look for. And with Rupert Brooke's sonnets, we may say that no other war in our world's history has been instantly transmuted into poetry of purer gold."

Notes of the Day.

The New Greek Cabinet.

King Constantine seems to have found an accommodating politician in the person of M. Calogeropoulos, who has, with a promptitude which we hope spells some decision of character formed a cabinet,—not of all the talents, but of all the non-entities. Cabinets in Greece during the past few years have changed with such kaleidoscopic rapidity that it is not easy for foreigners to keep themselves acquainted with the names of all the numerous prominent politicians, but we do not remember any of the gentlemen of the new government as having filled office in any previous combination, though we are open to correction. At any rate, they all appear to be guiltless of the taint of Venizelism and that is no doubt why they have been chosen.

An Unfortunate Omission.

It does not appear that M. Calogeropoulos went to the trouble of making himself acquainted with the confidential views of the Eminent ministers before accepting the task imposed upon him. He just did as he was bid and made up a government anyhow to follow the behests of his royal master. It is a somewhat unfortunate omission, because it is quite certain that at the first indication of pursuing a policy that is not in accordance with the views entertained by the protecting Powers, there will be trouble of a character that will probably bring M. Calogeropoulos and his government to summary grief. However, he and his colleagues are such an unknown quantity that we must admit that what they will or will not do, and on what terms they have accepted office, is largely a matter of speculation,—though it is certain that they have got to try and oblige the King.

Rhodes Scholarships for India.

Reuter informed us the other day that "in the Commons Mr. Asquith said he saw no reason for recommending the allotment of German Rhodes scholarships to parts of the Empire which, at present, were not benefiting." This came as an unpleasant surprise to all who considered it a bare act of justice to make over in whole or part to India the scholarships Germany has forfeited by drenching the world in blood,—especially as India has honourably and willingly shared the sacrifice necessary to withstand Germany's ambitions. It is, however, a relief to learn that the telegram cabled by Reuter was wholly misleading. It appears that what Mr. Asquith said was that the proposal to allot the Rhodes Scholarships to the parts of the Empire at present excluded, was being dealt with by a private Bill and he, therefore, saw no reason to make any recommendation with regard to it,—a far from disappointing reply.

Mr. Chamberlain's Sympathy.

The London correspondent of the "Englishman" is able to give fuller and more satisfactory information on the subject. The suggestion that India should benefit by the abolition of the German scholarships is understood to have originated with Mr. Montagu Burrows, late Local Adviser at Oxford for Indian students. It was, says the correspondent, heartily taken up by Mr. Chamberlain, who has submitted his views to the trustees. The latter, without definitely committing themselves as to powers not yet obtained from Parliament, are understood to have received these proposals in a sympathetic spirit. It is fortunate that there is no bar in respect to non-European birth; for the will expressly provides that neither race nor religion shall qualify or disqualify.

Ralli Jute Contract Scandal.

The other day "The Times" stated that the War Office estimated that Messrs. Ralli Brothers' jute contract would save the Government £7 a ton or £580,000 on the 80,000 tons supplied to Dundee in twelve months. "The Times" pointed out that £5 of the saving was due to reduced freight and 2s. 6d. to not paying insurance and remission of the Indian export tax, both of which could be realised without the placing of a monopoly. Thus the net saving would be only 12s. 6d. or £50,600 annually. "Capital" subjects the War Office claim to a closer analysis on a different basis. A saving of £7 a ton means a saving of Rs. 20 a bale of 400 lbs. net or Rs. 4 per maund of 82 lbs. To assert that Rallis' can buy jute in the Calcutta market at about 40 per cent cheaper than any other firm, remarks our contemporary, "is a frigid lie." They cannot purchase jute in the Calcutta market, baled or by the maund, at a single pie below the market rate, which is regulated by the demand and is the same to all buyers. "Capital" adds

Assuming for the sake of argument that the Director of Contracts in the War Office was ejected into the belief that the Ralli deal would save the nation £580,000 or £7 per ton, what are we to say to the downright dishonesty of this proposal to the Scotch shippers that they should undersell Rallis' to their own ruin?

Military Wants.

A striking example of the wasteful extravagance involved in the lack of common-sense and businesslike co-ordination between departments in the military organisation in this country is supplied in a story which comes from Bangalore. It is told in a letter to a Calcutta contemporary. The writer heard that a shopkeeper in the bazaar was selling a large number of khaki serge soldiers' uniforms, coat and trousers, at Rs. 4 the suit. On enquiry he found that the shopkeeper had some two thousand or more of the suits, some of which were unused, and that he had bought the lot cheap from the London Territorial regiment. The suits were sold because they were too warm for the soldiers to wear at Bangalore and the regiment had to have an entirely new outfit.

The Want of System.

One is first amazed at the fatuity of bringing British troops to a warm climate in clothes intended for a cold one. But what is more amazing is that troops should be sweating in warm clothing at Bangalore, while, as the correspondent points out, convalescents at Wellington, only a few hours journey away by rail, were shivering in the cold. No one seems to have thought of transferring this warm clothing to a hill station where in the hospitals it was urgently wanted. The system is such that there is no sort of centralisation by which this useless warm clothing in Bangalore was not promptly snapped up for use in a place where warm clothing was wanted. A system which allows regiments to dispose of things that it does not want at a sacrifice, without any attempt to ascertain whether these could be made use of in other quarters seems to require drastic overhauling.

German Censorship.

The "Daily News" of London, under the heading, "Free Speech as an Antidote to Secret Agitation," gives a note from its special correspondent in Rotterdam:

"The Cologne correspondent of the 'Tyd' reports information from a well-informed source that the complete raising of censorship, other than the military censorship, may be expected shortly, as the authorities can no longer oppose the increasing agitation among the people. Up till now the censorship has allowed freedom of speech on the objects of the War and the basis of an honourable peace exclusively to the National Committee."

The only result of the Government measures of suppression is the continuous appearance of a succession of secretly produced pamphlets, which are distributed from hand to hand, and increase the prevailing unrest. It is hoped that the raising of the censorship would provide a safety valve for the feeling now increasing in bitterness among the poorer sections of the population.

It is difficult to believe that the German Government will do anything so sensible, but, if they do, it will be interesting to watch the results.

KING CONGRATULATES GENERAL HAIG.

HIS FAITH IN COMPLETE VICTORY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM)

LONDON, Sept. 16.

The King has cabled to General Haig congratulating him on the brilliant success. The King says he never doubted that complete victory would ultimately crown our efforts, and the splendid results of yesterday have confirmed that view.

A MAJOR AND HIS FUNERAL.

"DISGUSTING PARAPHERNALIA OF THE UNDERTAKER."

Major H. E. Baskerville Walton, late 4th Dragoon Guards, of Sussex-square, Brighton, who died on May 22, in his sixty-seventh year, left £102,225, with net personalty £2,332. He bequeathed £500 to the British Ophthalmic Hospital at Jerusalem, £500 to the Vicar of St. Bartholomew's, Brighton, for parish purposes, £250 to the Vicar of All Souls, Brighton, for like purposes, £250 to Sussex County Hospital, and £200 to the Little Sisters of the Poor, Old Shoreham road. He directed that no gloves, handkerchiefs, scarves, and cloaks, nor other "disgusting paraphernalia of the undertaker" are to be worn at his funeral, and the horses used are to be brown, bay, grey, or chestnut, and "not the usual undertakers' slab-sided Belgian horses, behind which no gentleman would care to be seen dead or alive."

At a meeting of the Nizam's Dominions Branch of the Anglo-Indian Empire League a resolution was passed appealing to the Viceroy to nominate a representative of the community in the Imperial Council, at the earliest opportunity.

According to the Central News Paris correspondent, the Italian Journal "Ordine" estimates that since the German embarkation upon their offensive against Verdun last February the Austro-German forces have been reduced by more than 1,500,000 men, considerably over 400,000 of these losses being prisoners. There is every reason to believe that Austria's reserves of men are almost, if not quite, exhausted, and that fully 35 per cent of Germany's available reserves have been swallowed up.

ADVANCE.

NEW GREEK CABINET.

On Friday and Saturday the British achieved brilliant victories on the Somme. They smashed through the third and last line of the Germans' long established position on the Somme and drove them to less strongly organised defences. The much vaunted wall of steel has been battered through.

The British line now runs 500 yards north of High Wood and includes the whole of the large villages of Courcellette, Martinpuich and Flers, each fully twice the size of Guillemont.

The total captures in two days are over 4,000 prisoners of whom 116 are officers.

During the week-end the French also gained considerable ground on the Somme. They pushed forward parties to the edge of Ranecourt, carried a series of trenches to a depth of 500 metres north of Priez Farm, captured a strong trench east of Denicourt, carried three trenches successively north-east of Berny, and progressed north of Bouchavesnes.

The Serbians have achieved a brilliant success against the Bulgarians west of Lake Ostrovo, carrying Gornicevo and the greater part of the ridge of Malkanidze. The Serbian cavalry pursuing routed the Bulgarians and seized Ekisu, obliging the Bulgars to retreat precipitately more than 15 kilometres. The Serbs now occupy all the positions dominating Florina, the capture of which may consequently be considered imminent.

On the left bank of the Vardar the British captured Makukovo and also two points northward of the town, while on the right bank the French carried enemy trenches on a front of 1,500 metres to a depth of 800.

A telegram from Rome says that the Italians are preparing what promises to be a more important affair than the attack on Gorizia.

The Belgians have captured Tabora, one of the German strongholds in East Africa after 10 days' fighting.

M. Calogeropoulos has formed a new Greek Ministry.

In the awards in connection with the battle of Jutland Admiral Jellicoe has been decorated with the Order of Merit and the Grand Croix of the Legion of Honour.

ADVANCE FROM 2,000 TO 3,000 YARDS

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 15. The following is the text of the British communiqué issued this morning:—We captured last night the enemy's trenches over a front of a thousand yards, including a strongly defended locality known as the "Wunderwerk." This morning we attacked on a front extending from Bouleaux to the north of the Albert-Bapaume road, a distance of six miles. Considerable successes have already been obtained. We advanced from two thousand to three thousand yards in various places. The attack is progressing satisfactorily. A large number of prisoners have been taken.

NEW TYPE OF HEAVY ARMoured CAR

We employed in this attack for the first time a new type of heavy armoured car, which proved of considerable utility.

HAVOC BY BRITISH AIR-CRAFT.

There was much aerial fighting. Four hostile machines were brought down in flames and at least four others driven down damaged, while two hostile kite balloons were brought down.

TROOPS FILLED WITH THE SPIRIT OF VICTORY.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 15. Reuter's correspondent at Headquarters telegraphing this afternoon says:—

Our troops in the great assaults have broken through the enemy's third line of defence and it is reported that Flers is in our hands and that the infantry is advancing further in the direction of Norval. We are at the moment in the outskirts of Martinpuich on our left and thence to our right we have moved forward along the whole line encircling High Wood and occupying the main part of Bouleaux Wood. Our men are filled with the spirit of victory.

In several parts of the line the enemy is fleeing back to the next line. Prisoners are coming in fast. About 500 have already arrived and others are coming. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

EXTENT OF BRITISH GAINS.

COMMAND OF BOTH SOMME BANKS SECURED.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

PARIS, Sept. 16.

An expert French commentator referring to yesterday's battle says that the British infantry showed a remarkable bite and when counter-attacked resisted desperately. The British now hold the whole range of hills between Pozieres and Combles. This is a very powerful advance which will enable the French to move forward on both the banks of the Somme. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

BRITISH DASH.

HOW MAIN POINTS WERE CARRIED.TOTALLY OUTFLANKED AND CUT OFF.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

PARIS, Sept. 16. The following particulars regarding yesterday's great battles on the Somme have been received from a French source. The morning was a beautiful one, the weather favouring aerial observation, when the British moved forward between Albert-Bapaume road north-west of Pozieres and Bouleaux Wood south-east of Ginchy.

Their dash after effective artillery preparation enabled them to carry the enemy's main points d'appui along ten kilometres and by noon Flers and Martinpuich had been captured but the Germans were still holding out in the northern portion of High Wood. But thanks to their successful advance west and east of the wood, the British managed to outflank the enemy and cut him off. Hence the large number of prisoners.

The British had thus considerably advanced along the Flers road. Then they gained ground south-east of Leuze Wood and still further encircled Combles. German counter-attacks in the afternoon were repulsed and fresh efforts enabled the British after very violent fighting to advance to the outskirts of Courcellette.

Among the prisoners nine German regiments have been identified which proves that the German High Command manned its lines heavily in expectation of a British attack, but our Allies' vigour was irresistible. The enthusiasm aroused by the Australians at Pozieres, the Irish at Ginchy and also by the recent French victories worked wonders. Throughout the day the mastery in the air incontestably belonged to the British. Few German aeroplanes dared to venture to the British lines.

BRITISH AIR SERVICE.

CONSTANT AND SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATION WITH ARTILLERY.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 16.

In the course of his communiqué last night General Haig said that the air service had kept up constant and successful co-operation with the artillery and infantry and frequent and accurate reports were furnished in the course of the battle. The hostile artillery and infantry were effectively gauged by the aeroplanes with machine-gun fire.

Many bombing attacks were carried out against hostile aerodromes and railway stations, in the course of which troop trains and a railway siding were attacked with machine-gun fire. A German kite balloon was brought down. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

FURTHER BRITISH PROGRESS.

4,000 PRISONERS IN TWO DAYS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, Sept. 17.

A British communiqué says: To-day south of the Ancre we continued attacks in certain localities making further progress.

Since yesterday we have advanced from one to two miles on a front of six miles. The number of prisoners taken to-day was over 1,900 including 51 officers. The total captures in two days are over 4,000 of whom 176 are officers. Hitherto six guns and over 50 machine-guns have been taken or destroyed, and considerable quantity of material captured.

Fifteen German aeroplanes were destroyed on the 15th and another hostile kite balloon has been brought down. Altogether six of our machines are missing. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

LONDON, Sept. 16.

The following is the text of the British communiqué issued at midday to-day:—On the main battlefield south of the Ancre there was no material change. Four German field-guns and a further 200 prisoners were captured. Two counter-attacks were beaten off and we hold the line gained yesterday, which now runs 500 yards north of High Wood and includes the whole of the large villages of Courcellette, Martinpuich and Flers, each fully twice the size of Guillemont.

We carried out many successful enterprises last night at various points on the rest of the front, our troops entering enemy trenches at many places and inflicting casualties and taking prisoners.

GERMANY'S BLACKEST
WEEK.DRIVEN FROM SOMME
STRONGHOLDS.THIRD AND LAST LINE
SMASHED THROUGH.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, Sept. 16. "Great day in Germany's blackest week" strikes the keynote of the morning papers' opinion on yesterday's communiqué. The feeling is one of satisfaction without elation. The question has been asked during the French push 'What are the British doing?' Last night's communiqué from General Haig is a splendid answer to that. It means that both the British and French have now smashed through the third and last line of the enemy's long-established position on the Somme and driven him to less strongly organised defences. The much vaunted wall of steel has been battered through. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

GREATEST SUCCESSES SINCE
WAR BEGAN.SPLENDID CO-OPERATION OF ALLIES'
"FLYING INFANTRY."

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 16. The pace of the fighting during the past fortnight is undoubtedly beginning to tell on the Germans. German newspapers are seeking desperately for excuses to explain the continuous advance of the Allies, but the German communiqué continues to push the usual half-truths, talking of bloody repulse of Allies, whereas their successes have undoubtedly been the greatest achieved on the western front since the beginning of the war.

While the artillery continues to play an ever more splendid part in preparing the way for the infantry advance across the great Albert Plateau and crawling armoured cars negotiate the country never yet crossed by a vehicle of any kind, it should not be forgotten that aeroplanes are playing a splendid and unexpected part, descending so low in pouring in the machine-gun fire that they have become literally flying infantry. Machines skimming fields have added another terror for the German infantry. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

MACHINE-GUN PROBLEM SOLVED.

NEW HEAVY ARMoured CARS.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 16. It is stated that the chief work of the new heavy armoured cars mentioned by General Haig is to locate and destroy German machine-guns prior to our infantry advance. This should considerably reduce our casualties, a large percentage of which are due to machine-guns. No details of the cars available but it is pointed out that no vehicle on ordinary wheels would be able to traverse shell-torn wilderness, roadless and intersected with trenches.

VERITABLE MOBILE
TURRETS.

COMPLETELY DEMORLISE GERMANS.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

LONDON, Sept. 17. Reuter's special correspondent wires that the outstanding feature of yesterday's push was the amazement of German prisoners who, after being overwhelmed by the supposedly impotent British, were told that this was a mere fleabite compared with what was coming.

There were many raids on the whole line yesterday, causing heavy aggregate casualties. There was a particularly brilliant affair at the Leipzig salient, near Thiepval, which resulted in the capture of five officers and 170 men.

All German counter-attacks hitherto have been abortive, suggesting that the enemy are tired.

It is reported that the Germans are rushing up reinforcements in motors, which are leaving an unpleasant time at the hands of our artillery, assisted by airmen. The British have faced the first German army with over a thousand guns.

The topic of the moment is our new armoured cars which are veritable mobile turrets and which seem to afford the solution of the problem of dealing with machine-guns. German prisoners admit that the sight of these weird monsters creeping towards them, spitting fire, was the most demoralising experience. The whole tone of the prisoners is one of great depression. They were told that our offensive was spent and the inactivity of previous days lulled them into false security.

FRENCH PUSH.

TRENCHES SOUTH OF RAN-
COURT STORMED.ENEMY'S BLOODY REPULSE
EAST OF CLERY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Sept. 15. This afternoon's communiqué says:—We stormed the German trenches south of Ranecourt and pushed forward parties to the edge of that village.

German attacks east of Clery were bloodily repulsed, especially near the southern end of Hill 76, where the enemy suffered heavy loss.

We easily repulsed a bomb attack north-east of Berny-en-Santerre. Two enemy attacks west of Vaux Fort road were repulsed. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

FINAL ENCIRCLING OF COMBLES.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Sept. 16. Last night's communiqué said:—The French have advanced north of Priez Farm, carrying a series of trenches to a depth of 500 metres. This advance in conjunction with the British marks the beginning of the final encircling of Combles. There has been furious fighting east of Bethune road and north of Bouchavesnes, where we have extended our positions.

ADVANCE EAST OF DENICOURT.

The French have carried a strong trench east of Denicourt after a sharp fight. Two French attacks in Denicourt sector in the afternoon gave very valuable results. Three trenches were carried successively north-east of Berny and 200 prisoners, of whom five were officers, and ten machine-guns were captured.

The ground captured in the afternoon was covered with German corpses.

GREAT AERIAL ACTIVITY

There has been great aerial activity and numerous places have been bombed behind the German lines. Numerous fights in the air occurred on the Somme behind German lines and in these the French were brilliantly successful. Several Germans were brought down.

Our bombing squadrons during the night of the 14th instant bombed the stations at Tergnier, Chauny and Guiscard and fires were observed. Forty bombs were dropped on the barracks at Stenay and several fires broke out. Fifty bombs were dropped on the blast furnaces at Rombach. One aviator reached Dilligen in Saar where he bombed and set on fire big works. The Metz-Pont-a-Mousson railway was bombed and heavily damaged. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

FRENCH CONSOLIDATE ALL
NEW POSITIONS.TWENTY-ONE GERMAN AEROPLANES
FELLED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Sept. 16. A communiqué says we consolidated our new positions. Enemy attacks east of Clery and east of Berny were repulsed. Four hundred unwounded prisoners were taken.

Twenty-one German aeroplanes were brought down yesterday. Many bombs were dropped on various German establishments and stations.

COMPARATIVELY QUIET.

GROUND GAINED NORTH OF BOUCHAVESNES.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Sept. 17. A communiqué says: The day was comparatively quiet on the Somme front. The French progressed north of Bouchavesnes and carried a trench north-east of Berny.

A German counter-attack at Belloy collapsed under machine-gun fire. French air raids behind the German front continue.

ISOLATED.FRENCH WITHIN REACH OF PERONNE-BAPAUME ROAD.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 16. The "Pioneer's" correspondent cables:—London, 15th September:—It was stated in the German press at a comparatively early date in the Somme offensive that the Allied attack had failed to attain its objective, as it would be necessary in order to effect a strategic breach in the German line to press the Germans back to the Bapaume-Nesle Road both north and south of Peronne. The recent French successes north of the Somme have, of course, brought them well on to the main road between Peronne and Bapaume. Peronne itself being practically isolated. —Appeared in our Sunday Edition.

On the right bank of the Vardar the French carried enemy trenches on a front of 1,500 metres to a depth of 800.

OPERATIONS IMMINENT.

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 17.

A "Pioneer" cable says:—According to "The Times" correspondent with the Roumanian army the capture of the Bulgars' eight German guns on the bank of the Danube took place at Lipniza on the 15th. The Bulgars were repulsed when still 30 miles from the Chernavoda railway bridge at the Danube end of the Constantza fortified line. Meanwhile, according to a wireless from Rome, the Russians dominate the port of Varna which is completely cleared of enemy submarines and torpedo boats. So far the Russians have been in contact with German and Turkish troops only, not Bulgars.

The "Exchange" correspondent at Bucharest says that operations on Roumania's southern front are imminent. Distress in Bulgaria is increasing, the population is without food, officials are unpaid, crops poor and a reign of terror prevails, executions are numerous.

Reports from neutral countries state that the German Staff is quarrelling over its reverses. Hindenburg remains dictatorial despite his Somme failure.

TURKISH ROUT IN SINAI.

FURTHER DETAILS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 17.

The "Pioneer's" Cairo correspondent writes: There is no further news from Sinai. The enemy has retreated well away from our lines and there is no indication of any desire on his part to maintain contact with us. It is now possible to give with a certain degree of accuracy some figures regarding the recent fighting in the Kat and Romani districts. The Turks numbered altogether 18,000 men of whom 9,000 were left to fight the rear guard action at Bir-el-Abed. Their losses amounted to over 9,000. 3,390 prisoners are in our hands including 49 officers and 25 Germans. 1,251 killed were buried by us and there were 4,000 wounded, including the killed buried by them. We captured one Krupp 75 M.M. Our own losses only amounted to 1,130 (202 killed, 882 wounded and 46 missing), an exceedingly cheap price for such a complete and extensive victory.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE.)

PARIS, Sept. 16.

In a stirring speech in the Chamber M. Briand emphasised the change in the war situation. The enemy was everywhere on the defensive and had lost the initiative. He laid stress on the importance of the Balkan campaign which would shatter Germany's Oriental dreams. The only peace for the Allies would be peace through victory.

questions, there was one point which we ever remembered in our lectures, for after the lecture we used to have open discussion. If a man got up and tried to induce us to give up our law abiding methods for violence, we always knew that that man was a police spy. There are plenty of police spies here. They will come among us. Let them come, we have nothing to conceal. But the danger is that these men will do here what I know they did in Bonares. When they meet a hot-tempered man, they will egg him on, and suggest various illegitimate ways of work, and encourage him to speak of conspiracy and violence, as foolish boys sometimes will, when they get excited, and then he will report to the authorities and try to get up a pretence of conspiracy. I warn you against men who counsel violence; they are spies and not true workers.

LOYALTY TO THE KING-EMPEROR.

We are met here under the shadow of the Union Jack, with the figure of our King-Emperor George V. upon it. We have placed the picture there, clad in the uniform of an Indian soldier, because in the work we are doing, we seek not to overturn his Empire but to preserve it to him and his heirs, because we know that those are the true fighters for the Empire who sympathise with Indian grievances and share our righteous aspirations, and in order to make it the two sentences that we often used in the Central Hindu College, viz., "Vande Mataram"—Worship the Mother—and "Long Live Our Emperor" on one other. We worship the Mother and therefore we are loyal to the Empire. In proportion as you feel passionate patriotism which makes you worship her, so you will also realise that in this vast Empire, India may grow mightiest and she should grow alone. Patriotism and loyalty are not antagonistic; they are complementary. That the King-Emperor showed when he came here amongst us, in order that, crowned at Delhi, he might accept the homage of his Indian people. He showed us he loved and sympathised with India, and that as Emperor he loved—he did not despise. Take then these two sentences as your watchwords. Do not let hot feeling at any momentary injury in any way diminish your loyalty to the Crown itself. Remember that in this vast change that is going on, new Powers are growing up, and remember that the primacy of Asia belongs to India, and that can only be held in union with the British Empire. You have growing up new forces, and those forces are helpful if East and West clasp hand-in-hand; and so I would urge upon you on this first anniversary, make strong your heart, make use your words. An Englishman said without rebuke the other day, that no civilised Nation can remain governed by another Nation. Time is with you. The spirit of the age is with you. Circumstances are with you; for as the Bishop of Madras said the other day, "How shall England fight for liberty in Europe and refuse to give liberty in India?"

NEED FOR STUDY.

You younger ones need to study before you form your opinions. You have the great example of Gopal Krishna Gokhale, who knew of any subject that he spoke on ten times more than he put into words. Therefore study well, while you have time. Now we go on into a new year. Who can tell what at the end of it will come? But this I know, that whether in one year or in several, whether there be difficulty and suffering in front of us or whether there be comparatively easy times, the freedom of India is already decreed in those high words where, as Dante said: "to will is to do." The word has gone out that declares that India's bonds shall be broken and that India shall be free. Struggle against all despondency; do not allow despair to come near you. Even if the clouds grow dark and lightnings flash around, beyond the clouds there is the blue sky where no storms can rage and where no cloud may come. Fear nothing, save to be unworthy of your land; fear nothing, save to prove recreant to your trust; be sure that as the cause is righteous and as the righteous God sitteth above the floods and storms, the promised Liberty shall come down upon the Motherland and we shall live to see our India free, from the Himalayas to Comorin, from Baluchistan to Assam. (Loud cheers.)

The meeting terminated with cheers for the King-Emperor and shouts of Vande Mataram.

HOME RULE MOVEMENT.

ANNIVERSARY DAY.

MRS. BESANT'S ADVICE TO YOUNG INDIA.

The first Anniversary of the Home Rule Day was celebrated in the Gokhale Hall, Y. M. I. A. Madras, before an unprecedentedly large gathering. Mrs. Annie Besant presided. A number of speeches were delivered. Mrs. Besant in closing the proceedings said:—

Wise words were once spoken by an ancient eastern writer: "Let not him who putteth on his armour boast as him that putteth it off." Those words to-day for us are significant and true. We are met together here in a great crowd, moved by a single hope, breathing a single aspiration, that is full of encouragement, is full of life and energy, and makes every one of us feel as it were that the struggle can have but one ending. And we love to think of India free, the mistress of her own household. But between this and that, there stretch many a struggle, many an effort, many a sacrifice, nay, many a defeat and disappointment, for no great thing was ever done except by climbing the steps of failure that lead to the summit of success; and many a failure have we to face before we shall gain the strength to stand upright on that peak of triumph towards which our faces are turned. For cheap and easy success would not make the men and women that are wanted to build up the great Indian Nation of the future. Just as in your games against others in the playing field you train your muscles and strengthen your limbs and make your body like and active, so must you in the greater struggle of life, in the battle that you make for the Motherland, learn to train the muscles for the future victory and they will be made stronger by failure than by triumph. So, I who have been through many a struggle, who have known many a defeat but no final vanquishment, I say to you, especially to the younger amongst you, do not imagine that you can win the palm of victory until you have done your duty in the day of struggle. For Liberty is no easily won bride of a Nation. She is a mighty Goddess, who can only be won to descend amongst men by that tapas of which I spoke to you the other day.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Most of you who are here are the younger men of our City. You are being moved by the breath of a new life, you are feeling within you a new energy. Take care that that new life is used for India, and that you do not fritter away your strength, that you do not weaken yourself control, by hasty action, by unwise and unthoughtful effort, that you remember that you hold in trust India's future, and you must not give her enemies cause to blaspheme against her by saying that it makes the youth of Madras rebellious where they should be obedient, revolting where the duty of the students should be to yield to the elders. I dare to speak to you on this, because I love you, because there are no boys or men in the world whom it is so easy to guide or to win as the young men of Indian soil. Mr. Arundale will bear me witness that in all the difficulties of these terrible years when there was unrest and assassination in the land, we did not lose one boy from all the hundreds who passed through our hands, and we never lost them because we sympathised with them and understood them, and because we did not try to drive but ever tried to lead. I do not believe that in India there will ever be a revolt amongst students, if a little sympathy, a little understanding, a little gentleness are shown by the elders to the youngsters. While I believe that that is true, I say to you that if you do not find sympathy and comprehension, the greater is the opportunity for you to train yourselves for the difficult struggle of the future. If everybody were loving and kind, what merit then will there be in you that you should also be reverent as to the Gurus, but reverence to the Guru used to be won by the Guru. You have the duty of trying to be the ideal students even amid the difficulties of the present day. We want you for India, and you must not throw yourselves away. You must not allow yourselves to be drawn out of your education to-day, for educated men are wanted for India. If you throw away your education, as you may in a hasty moment, it is India who will suffer—the mother

DAYTON AIRLESS TIRE IS A BOON TO MOTORISTS.

It has no inner tube, no filling-in of air, and hence cannot puncture or blow-out, and consequently no monthly repair bills to pay. It is as easy riding as the pneumatic tire, and in fact causes LESS vibration than pneumatic. Ask us to prove this.

Thousands of sets now in most satisfactory service on Touring Cars, Limousines, Light Runabouts, Delivery Cars, Electrics, Motor Fire Apparatus, and all types of motor vehicles.

75 per cent. of all American Motor Fire Apparatus are equipped with DAYTON AIRLESS TIRES.

Fort Recovery, Ohio, Feb. 1, 1915.
Gentlemen:—In the fall of 1912 I equipped the rear wheels of my Maxwell roadster with your 34x4 Dayton Airless Tires. The service I received from them has been wonderful and I can strongly recommend them to all automobile users. They are as easy riding as the pneumatic and absolutely do away with all punctures, blowouts, etc. They are the only tire that can be used to really enjoy motoring.

Yours very truly,
DR. FRED MILLER.

Lynbrook, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1915.
Gentlemen:—Two years ago, after many troublesome delays in our delivery service caused by tire punctures and blow-outs, I decided to try Dayton Airless Tires, and since that time have never lost one minute through tire trouble, which has given us such a decided advantage over our competitors, that I hope they will never get Dayton Airless Tires.

More pleasing, however, to me than the excellent quality of the tires has been the honest satisfactory dealings.

Yours very truly,
WM. STEPHANY.
